OFR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Bipcial Correspondence of the Chicago Tribagas]
Wassinstone, Thursday, Sept. 6, 1863.
The latter of John C. Callpons, recently made public through the New Tork Phase, dates back to the seed time of the present harvest of treason, bloodshed and rebellion.
Cathonn was the great humbandman. His master spirit, disappointed in the impatient Calhoun was the great matheadman. His master spirit, disappointed in the impatient and ancountrollable desire to be President, conceived the idea, and laid the foundations, drap in the prejudices and passions of the Senthern people, for the slaveholding Confederacy, of which he hoped to be the first hand. But the work was more difficult, and the premised land. He made a mistake, in the first place, is selecting an issue. If he had commexced with the very instead of the tail mode, commexced with the very instead of the tail mode, of which he was the eriginator, it is not improbable that he might have fived to respitch the high the very distribution of the protective policy in this country, which he afterwards had the efficient to demonstrate the essence of tyrsiny, and to sliege as a sufficient justification of multi-action and disussion. In 1516 he was the instear of the House of Representatives, the chosen champion of the Administration of the day, Mr. Madalou's, and the insurguistor of the policy of protection to domestic industry. I have nowhere seen that doctrine more broadly stated than in his speech on January 31st, 1516, upon the pending tariff thil, as I find it repeated in the Amais of Congress, compiled by Galos and Batem:

"Mr. Colhoun proceeded to another topic on general principles, without regard to their interest, a certain encouragement should be extended at least to our woolen and cotton nannfactures.

Another great hobby with Mr. Calbons at this period of his life, but which he afterwards held to be a sufficient justification of truscos and rebellion, was internst improvements, or the construction of reads, easily, det, by the General Government. In the same appects from which I have quoted above he awa.
